

Judge Breaks Down After Announcing Verdict

Attorney Magnani Found Guilty of Burglary

Veteran Superior Court Judge Frank B. Blum Monday found long-time acquaintance Frank L. Magnani guilty of burglary, then broke down emotionally, taking a five-minute recess to regain his composure.

Magnani is the veteran South San Francisco attorney who was charged with stealing groceries from Crider's Market in that city last April 15 while assisting in the storeowners' bankruptcy proceedings.

Judge Blum, who at the trial attested to Magnani's "excellent" reputation for "truth, integrity and honesty," has known the attorney for more than 10 years.

Despite that lengthy friendship, Blum chose not to disqualify himself when the defense asked for a trial without jury. "You're a judge or you're not," Blum said. "When these tough ones come we can't run and hide under a desk."

Following closing arguments and a two-hour lunch break, attorneys and court observers appeared in Blum's courtroom for the judge's verdict.

"Gentlemen, this is one of the toughest decisions I've ever made. I find Mr. Magnani guilty of second degree burglary," the judge said. Then it appeared Blum was about to break into tears, so he excused himself for five minutes.

When he returned, the judge said he was dismissing a charge of grand theft against Magnani, and that he would sentence him on the burglary charge Dec. 6.

While Magnani was convicted of a felony, Judge Blum later told reporters he most likely would reduce the conviction to a misdemeanor.

The judge also said he would do "what I can" to assist Magnani if the attorney is brought before the bar association for possible action against him.

In an interview, Judge Blum said he dismissed the grand theft charge "because it's just a duplication" of the burglary charge.

"It's one of the toughest decisions I've ever had to make because Frank is an absolutely wonderful guy," Judge Blum said. "I was shocked by what I was hearing (testimony at the trial)."

Judge Blum blamed "pressures" for Magnani's "out-of-character" behavior, calling it an "isolated offense."

"Unless something occurs, this is not a real, true criminal," Judge Blum said. "So I'm strongly considering reducing this to a misdemeanor."

Judge Blum cited as pressures Magnani's marital problems, plus the fact he was supporting six children. "And he didn't have the largest salary in the world. It was an emotional situation."

Prosecutor Stanley B. Poling said that before the trial Judge Blum said he could be fair and impartial despite his relationship with the defendant. "I think the verdict shows that Judge Blum indeed was fair. It was a difficult case for all parties involved," said Poling, who noted that he had tried cases in which Magnani was opposing counsel.

Defense attorney William Dunn had vigorously argued that Magnani had permission to enter the market, and had always intended to pay for the groceries.

Poling, though, had argued that there was no such permission, and that Magnani clearly had stolen the goods.

Judge Blum said it was the totality of the prosecution's evidence which led to his decision of guilt.

If the conviction is maintained as a felony, the maximum sentence is one to 15 years in prison. If Judge Blum reduces it to a misdemeanor, maximum sentence is six months in county jail and/or a $500 fine.

Both Dunn and Poling alluded to possible action by the bar association during their respective closing arguments.

"There is a possibility of disbarment by the state bar if he is convicted," Poling said during his argument.

Attorney Dunn, who had argued, among other things, on a reasonable doubt theory, said at one time that any action by the bar association should be of no concern to Judge Blum in determining guilt or innocence or degree of the charges.

"He is an attorney," Dunn said of Magnani. "He knows he's dead with a petty theft or grand theft" conviction.

Among the witnesses at the two-plus week trial were Thomas Bocci, the well-known South San Francisco attorney who discharged Magnani following the incident last April.

Four Daly City Men Held

Party's Tragic Ending

What began as a quiet birthday party, ended in tragedy Sunday outside a San Francisco home, when a guest tried to break up a fight and was fatally shot in the back.

Within six hours of the shooting, Daly City police had arrested three persons in connection with the slaying. Shortly after, a fourth man was arrested, with a fifth person still being sought.

The fight erupted outside a Mira Loma Park home about 2 a.m. when four youths arrived as everyone was leaving.

What prompted the fight in the first place is not known, police said.

According to police, Ronald Turnispeed, 18, a construction worker, was able to stop the scuffle briefly, but one of the brawlers threw a lit cigarette into Turnispeed's face and the fight started again.

One youth pulled a handgun from his waist and shot twice, police said.

One of the slugs struck Turnispeed in the back. The victim died in front of 825 Rockdale Drive.

Only five days ago, Turnispeed, who also attends John Adams School in addition to working on a construction job, became the father of a baby boy.

An estimated 100 persons had attended the birthday party given for Mili Maluta, 18, by her uncle, Edward Tovar.

There was no indication of any trouble throughout the party, police said.

Daly City police, working on leads provided by the San Francisco police department, went to 563 Templeton St., Daly City and arrested Carlos Herrera, 18.

He was charged with murder and conspiracy.

While police arrested Carlos, two other persons fled from a rear door of the house into a waiting car, police said.

Within five minutes, Sergeant Ralph Warren and officer Louis Donati, in pursuit of the pair, apprehended them.

Arrested was Carlos' brother, Oscar, 20, and their brother-in-law, Ricardo Herrera, 28.

Ricardo was the driver of the getaway car, police allege.

Oscar was charged with murder and Ricardo with being an accessory to the murder.

Sunday night, shortly after 10 p.m., police arrested Leopoldo Lacasmana, 20, at his Oriente Street home without resistance, police said.

He was charged with murder and conspiracy.

During the car chase, a .38 caliber revolver was thrown from the speeding car, police said. It was recovered and police now are studying the weapon, it was learned.

Getting Her Teeth Into It

A burglar likely is nursing a badly bitten right hand this morning after a woman victim sank her teeth into it during an apartment robbery.

Police said Carle E. Fuentes, of 144 Crestwood Drive, Daly City, awoke about 1:30 a.m. Last Tuesday when a young man grabbed her in bed and put his hand over her mouth.

During the ensuing struggle, she bit the burglar's hand.

He fled from the apartment with the victim's purse and a wallet, police said.

The other victim, Martin Guillory, 16, has been released from the hospital after being treated for five bullet wounds in the abdomen and lower body.

Jurgens said that a reduction in the original charge of assault with attempt to commit murder was "appropriate in view of the circumstances" leading up to the shooting.

Judge Rose reported that he reviewed the matter with Jurgens and the defendant's attorney, Eric Schneider, and concurred that assault with a deadly weapon would be an appropriate charge.

Sentencing of the Sanchez youth has been postponed pending receipt of the report and recommendation from the CYA Guidance Center.

DC Youth Enters Plea

Henry Sanchez, 16-year-old Daly City youth, has pleaded "no contest" in San Mateo County Juvenile Court to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in the Sept. 23 shooting of two other teen-agers on the Jefferson High School football field.

Juvenile Court Judge Frank W. Rose, who accepted the plea on recommendation of Dep. Dist. Atty. John Jurgens, ordered the Sanchez boy to the California Youth Authority's North Reception Guidance Center near Sacramento for up to a 90-day period of observation and evaluation.

One of the shooting victims, Dennis Spooner, 16, was struck in the head by one of the bullets from the automatic pistol and is permanently blinded, according to Daly City Police Detective Harry Lax. Spooner still is in Mary's Help Hospital.

Poverty Levels, Numbers Continue to Increase

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Inflation is a visible disease that attacks the nation's nervous system and paralyzes people in industry and business.

Tell-tale signs of this illness are continually rising prices for most commodities and long lines of unemployed citizens.

Even experts appear confused as to what medication to apply to halt the spread.

It causes all sorts of actions and reactions among populace. The statistics it generates bewilders many, including those looking for a cure.

For example:

Sale of new cars had dropped dramatically, while sale of used cars has jumped.

For another, the gallonage of gasoline sold has dropped, but receipts have increased.

Still another: with employee payrolls higher than ever, poverty levels and numbers of unemployed persons has steadily risen in recent months.

Sales are off in just about every commodity, except liquor and cigarettes.

San Mateo County is considered the second richest county in the state.

Between 1970 and 1974 there has been a 2.1 percent decline in persons seeking assistance under Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC-U) — down from 17,321 to 16,895.

Further, Old Age Security cases decreased 15.6 percent during the period 1973-1974.

While the county's poverty caseload went down, Daly City's AFDC-U caseload went from 2,034 persons in 1970 to 2,484 this year, an increase of 22.1 percent.

There was also an increase of 11.9 percent in OAS cases. A Sept. 1974 report on poverty conditions in Daly City, compiled by Gary Lehner, of the city's Office of Planning, noted that 5.7 percent of the city's 70,000 residents are below the poverty level.

The guide for figuring this percentage is based on a family of 3.46 (in 1959) with an annual income of $2,610 or less.

(The 1959 figure, while it is more than a decade old, utilizes a variety of factors, including rising prices, in determining statistics applicable today.)

A good barometer of poverty is the number of persons using food stamps.

In Daly City, City Clerk Mrs. Anna Ohlendorf, said there were 450 people authorized by the county to purchase food stamps when the program started in 1971.

Daly City serves people from throughout the county, Mrs. Ohlendorf said. Recent reports indicate people from

N. County Health Center Upheaval

County officials say personnel disputes at the North County Mental Health Center in Daly City have resulted in other agencies being "often unwilling to refer patients here."

That contention was contained in a memorandum to the 58 psychiatrists, counselors, and social workers at the center from Dr. George Pickett, director of County Health and Welfare.

He said last Wednesday, the workers have been notified that they should look for jobs elsewhere if they refuse to be "accountable" and work under guidelines. Pickett said many workers have opted for a "doing your own thing" program.

In other developments:

• A source close to the staff workers disclosed that the employees are split themselves, perhaps 50-50, over the problems which have arisen at the center.

• One example of "personnel" squabbles, it was said, was the recent "demotion" of Dr. Jorge Werbin Oct. 21 from chief of psychiatry to staff psychiatrist on allegations he "was not accepting responsibility of the administration."

• County officials and union officials have traded memos on a dispute concerning staff meetings.

Tom Jones, business agent for the employees union, said, "Management cannot hold these employees accountable for their administrative system. Statistics show that their (the workers) success is better than many other health programs."

But Dr. Pickett said Wednesday that many workers are refusing to be accountable, sometimes even refusing to tell superiors what they are doing.

He said in the memo to employees, "While many, hopefully most, of the workers have tried hard to do the necessary work of a mental health center, the overall atmosphere and attitude of this center has deteriorated, and the center has not maintained the respect it had 10 years ago. Not from the community it is supposed to serve, its elected representatives or other mental health workers. Other agencies are often unwilling to even refer patients here."

A MOOD OF DESPERATION

Things have been going from bad to worse for Olive (left) and Clive Turk, of 64 Los Olivos Ave., Daly City, as inflation wipes away all hope of ever moving ahead to a more comfortable way of life. They recently told their story to The Times during an interview in their sparse apartment.

For Daly City Couple

Little Hope of Getting Ahead

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Desperation has fallen on the barely adequate home of Clive and Olive Turk of Daly City.

The couple scrape out a day to day living with little hope in sight of ever getting ahead in these inflationary times.

Since Clive lost his job with a shipping and receiving company several years ago, and since Olive lost the use of her legs shortly thereafter, the Turks have been losing their grip and sliding downhill.

They both accepted the fact some years ago that "things would be rough for a while."

But they never thought life would completely turn its back on them.

Inflation has struck the couple like a thunderbolt.

At best, Clive is able to earn $200 a month delivering circulars door to door. He gets up at 3 a.m. and comes home at about 7 p.m.

Olive, although confined to a wheel chair, cooks and waits for Clive to return. She attempts to clean the small apartment on Los Olivos Street, while admitting, "I do get behind sometimes."

It is a small, sparsely furnished room.

When a lamp shade is broken beyond use, it is discarded. There is no extra money for a new one.

The same is true of dishes, chairs and all those items that most people take for granted in furnishing their homes.

Since he lost his job, Clive has swamped out bars, washed dishes at restaurants, cleaned windows and just about every other menial job there is in an effort to support his wife.

San Mateo County sends Olive a $244 check monthly as supplemental income because of her incapacity.

Together the Turks receive $444 to subsist.

A social worker in Daly City said the couple does not qualify for food stamp assistance, or any other financial help, because "they earn too much money."

It was pointed out by this same social worker that the Turks are not an unusual case.

There are similar needy families throughout the county, with the list growing at a steady rate.

Why can't Clive secure a better job, providing more income, he was asked?

"I'm 54, almost 55, and today they want a 20-year-old kid with 25 years experience. There just isn't anything around for men my age trying to start again," he said.

Clive is also blind in his right eye, and too is a deterrent to getting a job, he explained.

Clive Turk has a high school diploma, has had training as a radio technician, and isn't afraid to work, he said.

What he doesn't have is much hope that things will ever get better for him and Olive during these days of out-of-sight prices.

as far away as Belmont have come to the Daly City office—one of eight in the county — to purchase stamps.

A family of six may purchase $102 worth of food stamps for $71, if they are eligible.

In 1972, the number of stamp recipients rose to about 1,000.

One year later there were 1,500 persons buying stamps at the Daly City City Hall.

Who buys food stamps? Mrs. Ohlendorf was asked.

"No one type," she said. "There are senior citizens, young people, mothers with small children, all sorts of people."

Many appear to be working, but their income apparently are below the poverty mark, she said.

Officials acknowledge there are those "who take advantage of the system designed to help people who need it."

Last month, Mrs. Ohlendorf's office served 2,250 people — an increase of almost 400 per cent in only three and a half years.

Mike Furcht and Alice Kessler of Daly City's Information & Referral Center on Mission Street, agree that unemployment in the area is on the rise.

Available estimates on unemployment in the county range from 6 1/2 to eight percent.

Parking Meters May Be Scrapped

At first there were no parking meters along Mission Street in Daly City. In order to provide some system of parking for their customers, merchants asked the city to install them. This was done. Later, perhaps four years ago, merchants complained parking was insufficient to meet demands of customers and it would benefit both the city and merchants if off-street parking was provided.

Eventually, after much haggling, several lots were leased and improved by the city for off street parking. Then some merchants complained that two hours was inadequate for potential customers. Some meters were boosted to four hours. Along Mission Street meters cost a dime for two hours. In off-street, city-operated parking lots the cost for four hours was set at a quarter. Problems again arose when it was learned employees of stores along the street were using up all the "convenient" parking in front of stores, and letting customers park off Mission Street. It is felt that if these customers could use all available parking along the shopping street, business would increase, revenue from taxes would rise, and all would be happy.

People just don't like to walk even a half-block, according to Mission Merchants Association President Vince Merlo.

Monday, the merchants were back in front of the City Council, this time asking the meters be taken out; that permit parking be allowed in off-street parking lots, and a two-hour parking limit be enforced by police.

Police would roam the parking areas, chalking tires and tagging cars. The way some merchants and councilmen figure it, the parking tags would pull in as much money — perhaps more — than do the meters.

Last year, meters throughout the city took in some $23,529.

During the same period, about $22,940 was paid out for maintenance of the meters.

The $590 realized from these meters was put into the capitol outlay fund.

More than $45,000 was paid to the city in parking fines — of one sort or another — during the same period, City manager David Rowe informed the council and merchants in a public meeting Monday.

If the cost of maintenance of the meters is almost the same as revenues, should the city even have meters, Councilman Paul Hupf asked?

Councilman Victor Kyrakis asked how the rent on off-street lots would be paid without some income derived.

Councilman William Schumacher noted "we're trying to encourage business on Mission (street)."

Councilman Tony Giammona said he was against allowing free parking in the area.

And someone else suggested permit parking, charging $5 a month per slot per person at the off-street lots, be started.

Rowe had at first suggested $8 for the slots, but was convinced the public would be more receptive to the lesser charge.

It was hoped employees would be persuaded to use these off-street lots instead of taking up space along Mission Street.

Following the meeting, there was talk among merchant association representatives that perhaps their organization would buy up all the off-street spaces to prevent bus and Bay Area Rapid Transit District riders from filling up the lots and blocking off customers.

But something has to be done, and fast, George Smith, of the Merchants Association, told the city, "because we've checked (the lots) everyday and they're just not being used."

It was agreed that the "permit parking-no meters" system be tried out for 90 days.

Action was expected to be taken at the council's regular meeting Monday. Frank LaPierre.

Poverty

Daly City is about seven percent, Furcht ventures.

The bulk of those unemployed in Daly City, it was learned, are either in the 16-18 year old bracket, or seniors.

"Even those elderly people who have retired need work nowadays," Furcht said. "They just are not able to get it all together (on their retirement pay)."

There is a steady flow of persons visiting the I&R office seeking jobs, Furcht said.

As of July 1974, there were some 64 "new faces" a week dropping into the office seeking assistance in locating a job, Furcht said.

The I&R center is funded by Daly City. There are other such centers scattered around the county, it was learned.

This month, the I&R placed 135 persons in jobs.

A new federally-funded program — the Comprehensive Employment Act (CEA) — enables cities with a 6 per cent plus unemployment figure to seek emergency funding for public projects.

This is a year-to-year program, it was understood.

By "public projects," the Government means non-profit organizations, such as government projects, schools and such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce.

It is a sort of "on the job" training program designed to prepare people for jobs in the future.

The funds come under Title Two federal monies. To date, the Daly City has received two grants for this program, totalling some $326,000.

It was expected about 40 persons in all will be hired to fill slots, according to Assistant to the City Manager Don Fleming.

(Daly City, as the county's second largest city, was used as an example of the trend in the North Counties. Most other cities have similar programs and facilities, not to mention the staggering load of welfare cases.)

San Bruno Mountain Park Plans Unveiled

By BOB HEMINGWAY
Three alternate concepts, ranging from minimal development to fairly intensive recreational development, for a proposed 1,300-acre park on San Bruno Mountain were unveiled before a joint meeting of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors and the County Parks and Recreation Commission Thursday in Redwood City.

All of the concepts for the proposed park, extending south from Guadalupe Canyon Parkway, emphasize preservation of the area's natural amenities. The first of three hearings to receive public comment on the concepts is scheduled by the Parks and Recreation Commission for its Nov. 13 meeting at 2 p.m. in the County Office Building, Redwood City. A second public hearing will be held Nov. 26 at 8 p.m. in a north county location still to be determined. At its Dec. 11 meeting, the commission will receive a staff report and recommendation for the park development. Following selection of a development plan, an environmental impact report will be prepared and reviewed, a process requiring some three months. It is expected that the park plan will be submitted to the Board of Supervisors for action next April.

At Thursday's meeting, Del Davis and Reed Dillingham, heads of the two consultant firms which prepared the $30,000 park study, conceded that there is bound to be an impact on the natural environment of the mountain area by park development of any kind, but that the intent has been to balance the natural characteristics with public use.

With maximum recreational development under "Plan C" as many as 200,000 visitors a year could be expected, most from the 500,000 people, a good share of them San Franciscans, who reside within five miles of the mountain, Davis said. Davis reported that less than six per cent of the park area (78 acres) is actually developable for recreational use because of the steep terrain.

All of the plans call for trail systems of more than 12 miles, an equestrian center and horse trails of more than six miles. One alternative, Dillingham said, would be to restrict automobiles to a parking area near the park office at the entrance to the park and to provide access to vista points via shuttlebuses. Another plan would permit driving to the highest vista point via existing Radio Road.

The equestrian center would be located at the south edge of the park near South San Francisco and would entail the removal of some eucalyptus trees. Davis reported that there has been no provision made in any of the alternatives for overnight camping because the mountain is "not conducive" to that because of the weather. Also, he said, it would require additional facilities.

Day camping and picnicking are included in all plans, he said, and it could be possible to permit overnight camping for organized groups with proper supervision. Picnicking tables would be restricted to 80 tables under the minimal development plan, and to 150 tables under the maximum development. A total of 3.6 miles of trails and existing road would be utilized for bicycling under the maximum development, while only 2.7 miles of existing roadway would be used for bicycling under the other two alternatives.

Deputies Say Man Was on the Lam

San Luis Obispo sheriff's deputies Oct. 29 arrested a man they say is on the lam with a stolen lamb.

According to deputies John Hastie and C. R. Gerhardt, the prize lamb was stolen from an Orange County ranch earlier and transported to San Luis Obispo where it was shown at a livestock exhibition.

It won the grand prize. Next, the lamb was brought to Daly City and entered in the Grand National Livestock Exhibition where it was being considered for yet another top prize.

But before the award could be made, the two sheriff's deputies arrived on the scene and arrested Steve Cookson, 20, of Whittier, Calif.

Cookson was charged with receiving stolen property.

He may face further charges — including rustling — when he is returned to Orange County.

Price of the champion lamb is not known because livestock normally go to the highest bidder after the exhibition at the Cow Palace, police said.

One buyer attending the exhibition said the lamb could be worth "upwards of $1,400."

Strategy Revealed

Behind SP's Bid to Raise Fares

By JOHN CURRY

A state Assembly subcommittee may be getting to the bottom of a Southern Pacific request for a 111 per cent increase in Peninsula commuter fares after a stormy all-day hearing at the State Building in San Francisco Thursday.

At the core of the dispute was 13 work sheets, prepared for SP by R. L. Banks, a Washington, D.C., transportation consultant. SP didn't want to turn over to the committee but did at 2:15 p.m. upon direct order of Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, the subcommittee chairman, who acted on advice of legislative counsel.

The work sheets, though not made public Thursday, reportedly show that SP would suffer damaging loss of commuter patronage if fares increase beyond 60 per cent. Opponents of the increase have claimed SP is asking for the big hike for that purpose as a lever to drop the commuter trains altogether.

It wasn't easy for Papan's group, the Interim Subcommittee on San Francisco Peninsula Rail Commuter Service of the Assembly Transportation Committee, to get its hands on the papers. SP general counsel Charles W. Burkett and SP Atty. Robert W. Taggart argued for hours that these papers are "attorney work product" and not a final report, and as such are privileged from being made public.

Neither the Public Utilities Commission, to whom SP has made the fare application, nor the courts can require them to be turned over, Burkett and Taggart held.

"Yet in this hearing this subcommittee is using its subpoena power to circumvent these safeguards as they have been developed," Burkett charged.

After Burkett handed over the papers, Taggart cautioned they were "extremely confidential" and asked that no publicity be allowed. Possibly only three or four persons had seen them so far, he noted.

"I can't and won't give you assurance of confidentiality of this material," Papan replied.

Papan said later he would convene another interim committee the last week of November or first week of December, after the Banks papers and Thursday's meeting transcript had been studied. The Banks works probably will be part of the transcript and would become public record, Papan said.

The Thursday meeting was a result of a San Francisco newspaper story Oct. 13 that unveiled the existence of the Banks papers. Papan's subcommittee had two days of hearings Sept. 19-20 at Burlingame City Hall and the papers weren't mentioned by Burkett or William M. Jaekle, SP vice president for engineering research.

"That's just the information we were seeking on the impact of that fare increase," Papan remarked Thursday.

Burkett spent much of his time in the witness chair explaining why he, as an attorney, ordered the Banks study on his own initiative without consulting other top SP officials and then not informing others when he got the work sheets July 9 from Banks.

"I consider these decisions generally within the legal business," Burkett said, adding he consulted only with other SP lawyers on legal matters.

Jaekle testified that he hadn't heard about the Banks papers until Oct. 13. "I'm not usually involved in fare increases," he said. Jaekle had been selected because "we wanted a witness with the best over-all general knowledge to comment on the wide spectrum of questions in your letter of Sept. 18," Taggart told the subcommittee.

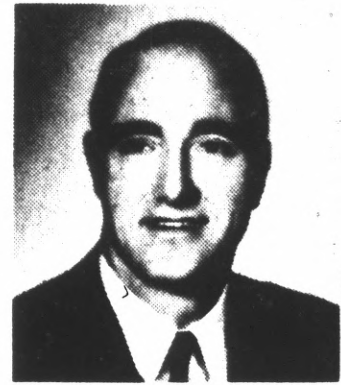

Burkett noted that he had told Banks to halt his studies when he, Burkett, decided the needed fare hike would be massive enough to require other studies to get some "subordinate facts concerning patronage."

The 111 per cent figure he arrived at, again on his own, was the lowest he thought the PUC would allow, he told Papan's group, and that's assuming no drop in patronage or a commensurate drop in expenses with loss of riders, and that again is only to make up 1974 operating losses, he said.

Burkett also warned that the PUC may not reach a decision until 1976.

Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City, asked Burkett, "Didn't you think someone might question that size increase? Don't you consider it bad PR?"

DC Earmarks Funds for Parks

Almost $1 million was earmarked last week by Daly City for purchase of land to build parks and to improve existing recreational facilities throughout the community in the coming year.

Among top priorities is construction of a seven-plus acre park in the Hillside-East Market Street area.

Some $200,000 is expected to be used to purchase lands — mostly open land — for the park.

The Hillside Park project is one of three park projects being partially funded under terms of the 1974 State Bond Act.

These bond funds will also kick off phase one of the so-called Mussel Rock Coastline Park — presently a garbage dump owned by the city, but operated by the Daly City Scavenger Company.

On completion, perhaps 15 years from now, it will include 160 acres stretching from just south of Thornton Beach to Mussel Rock.

Cost of this first step is some $25,800.

Acquisition of property for expansion and development of the Lincoln Park Clubhouse and grounds will come from some $240,000 in Bond Act money, according to City Manager David Rowe.

Both the Hillside and Lincoln Parks are in the eastern sector of the city.

Tennis courts on top of reservoir 5-B in the Serramonte area will come to another $170,000, while payments to the Jefferson Union High School District for the Westmoor High pool amount to $55,000.

The reservoir is built into a "cut" in the side of a hill, and on completion will have 10 courts and facilities for tennis players.

Three other park projects — street tree program; minor improvements at the 23-acre Gellert Park, and the city's nursery program — will amount to another $36,000.

Petrocchi Scholarship Fund Established

Business, civic and church leaders gathered last Tuesday at a Daly City restaurant to discuss progress on establishment of the Roland A. Petrocchi Memorial Scholarship Fund.

The fund is being established in memory of the late Daly City police chief who died suddenly Easter Sunday 1974.

Hopefully, the money is to be used to foster better law enforcement programs by encouraging police officers and persons desirous of becoming police officers through education.

Persons selected for the scholarships would have to appear before a screening board made up of community leaders and police officials.

Some 30 persons attended the meeting to "kick around" solicitation of funds for the project and to accept suggestions on how to disburse funds once the perpetual scholarship fund gets under way.

Chairing the program was Frank Spadarella, one of the originators of the fund.

Monsignor Richard Power, of Our Lady of Mercy Church, former mayor Frank Pacelli, Charles Turner, president of the First National Bank, David Hansen, Daly City police chief, Daly City police chief, detective Les Bastedo, Ron Petrocchi, an officer with the South San Francisco Police Department and son of the late chief and former mayor Bud Lycett.

New Charity Fund for Daly City Employees

Daly City employees will now have a choice between payroll deductions made for charitable organizations.

Joanne Coniglio, of the San Mateo County CHAD Committee, asked the City Council during a regular meeting last Tuesday, to allow the city's more than 100 employees to choose whether they want to donate annually to the United Bay Area Crusade (UBAC) or to the Combined Health Agencies Drive (CHAD).

CHAD includes such organizations as the Cancer, Heart, Arthritis foundations, Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Easter Seals, March of Dimes and seven other health agencies. The council was informed those employees making donations could earmark their contributions to any one organization.

Three of the CHAD agencies were previously with the UBAC campaign, according to Miss Coniglio.

Councilman Paul Hupf asked if the public would get an accounting as to where their donations went. Miss Coniglio assured the council an annual accounting is made public regarding where the money goes.

CHAD is already in effect in several Bay Area cities. The council unanimously approved the request.

P-TA Slates Dance

Westmoor High School PTA invites you to the annual fund raising dance, Saturday at the Westlake community center in Westlake Park.

Dancing will be one of the great Western swing groups in the Bay Area, Rich Price the Singing Sierran and the Sierrans.

Dancing will be from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Beverage will be available.

Admission is $3. For ticket information, call 756-5726.

Pacifica Planners Set Priorities

Bringing Order to City Planning

The Pacifica Planning Commission took some steps at a special study session Wednesday night to bring some order into the city's planning program.

The commissioners were presented with a list of 24 planning projects throughout the city and were asked to make recommendations and comments on the importance of each.

Lester Clark of the Department of Community Development said identifying these matters to the commission at one time would allow for more long range planning.

Although there was no specific action taken by the commission, the discussion did provide a current run-down of those projects that will be the subject of consideration at upcoming meetings.

The long slate of items was lumped into three categories of state mandated long range planning, city long range planning, and intermediate planning. Each contained information of state required deadlines, if any, the number of man hours needed to complete it, and whether it needed technical assistance or an Environmental Impact Report.

FOUR OF the eight state mandated projects had already surpassed their deadlines for completion.

The eight projects are:

- An open space ordinance, which was to be completed by the end of last year. The ordinance is supposed to be made consistent with the city's open space plan.
- A general plan-zoning conformance, in which the zoning must be consistent with the general plan. The deadline was Jan. 1, 1974.

Six elements that were mandated for the needs and protection of the community. They dealt with conservation, housing, seismic safety, noise, scenic highways and public safety. The conservation and housing element are already past their deadlines, while the others are to be done by September of 1975.

Since these projects were required by the state, the commission placed a high priority on each.

Similarly, the commissioners didn't place an actual order on the five long range programs, after it was decided that each completed the other. They are:

- Sharp Park general plan amendment, which is already in process. The commission was warned that the staff time given to the project could greatly expand in the preparation of an EIR or in other analysis.
- Further work with general plan goals and objectives that relate to land use, circulation and community facilities.

A general plan update and revision, that would involve revision of the land use and circulation elements of the general plan.

Hillside district land use and circulation planning, which would affect those hillside areas that might be developed in the future. Various studies need to be undertaken to insure the most feasible routes that are related to the density, intensity, nature and location of land use.

As for the city's 11 intermediate projects, the commissioners placed them in order of significance. The sign revision ordinance and the landscape maintenance deposit and agreement program was at the top of their list.

The sign ordinance has been sent to the City Council, and is near completion.

Meanwhile, the landscape program needs just to be reviewed in study session and then eventually go to the city council for consideration. This program was deemed necessary since the city has been upset in the past with the quality of installation and maintenance of landscaping on private projects. Part of the problem has been a lack of landscape standards and an absence of control to insure that such installation and maintenance is done properly.

Other high priorities were given to the federally mandated flood insurance program, a revision of planning applications and filing requirements, and landscaping standards.

The lowest priority was given to a "Pacifica Road Show," which would be intended as a way to promote economic development of the city and give various public groups, organizations and schools a view of the community.

The commission said it was waiting for the Chamber of Commerce to move on the first.

TV Violence

Do the blood and gore shows on television and in the movies encourage violent and contentious behavior from young viewers?

Dr. Victor B. Cline of the University of Utah thinks that they do. Doctors Robert M. Liebert, John M. Neale and Emily S. Davidson, authors of "The Early Window" agree with him.

Citing his own studies and those of the U.S. Surgeon General, Dr. Cline reports that most children watch TV from 14 to 49 hours a week, depending on age and socioeconomic level.

"This," writes Dr. Cline, "means that most children spend more time in front of a TV set than in front of a teacher during a year's time. In just the preschool years alone... the average child spends more time watching TV than he spends in the classroom during four years of college."

Dr. Cline notes a study that finds that the average child of 14 has witnessed over 10,000 murders on TV to say nothing of the violent crimes he has seen that have not led to murder.

Dr. Cline's studies found that the average film seen on TV or in the movie theatre contained "38 scenes of incidents of violence and sex, including nudity, illicit sex, physical aggression without weapons between humans, slaughter and massacre."

He learned that 43 per cent of the heroes in such shows were portrayed as law breakers or antisocial characters. Of those movies having heroines, 38 per cent were similarly antisocial types.

In 59 of the films the heroes killed one or more individuals, while 21 per cent of the heroines did similarly. In 87 per cent of the shows the hero was portrayed appealingly and sympathetically so the audience might identify with him.

WHEN THE HEROES' ultimate goals were analyzed, 49 per cent were attempting to do something socially constructive. As though this justified the slaying of another person or otherwise doing him violence. But in 27 per cent of the shows surveyed by Dr. Cline and four assistants the heroes were pursuing socially destructive goals or ends, such as pushing drugs.

Dr. Cline writes, "Rarely is there shown the impact, the aftermath, or the follow-up of all those people so neatly killed or injured, as it might be in real life. We don't see the grieving family of the father who was killed or the man with the damaged spine, unemployed and crippled for life by the bullet in the lower vertebrae, or the adolescent girl who was raped but who in real life is likely to have many years of acute marital problems arising out of her terrifying experience."

His studies lead Dr. Cline to conclude that, "Thus we see that the modern movie ethic equates courage with violence and the solution of problems with impulsive agree-sive action."

Thus he says, "If the themes in the current cinema," TV too, his title is How Do Movies and TV Influence behavior — "are harbingers of the future, we may indeed have some concerns for future generations."

Doctors Liebert, Neale and Davidson believe that TV does not necessarily lead a child to beat up his little sister the next time she takes his bicycle. "However it may well persuade him to resort to some kind of physical aggression when he tries to borrow his bike back."

They believe that gory shows provide two aggressive models that children ape — "The villain and the punishing hero, who is often rewarded handsomely for his actions."

In "The Early Window" the good doctors write that the impact on TV on children "need not be unhealthy," but they warn that "until aggressive content of the programming has been reduced, parents should bear in mind that violence may beget violence."

Teenagers March Aides Announced

Larry Gernardini was named vice chairman and Pamela Gibbs teen coordinator for the Teenagers March for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, to be held in the South San Francisco area Nov. 9 and 10.

According to an announcement from Basil Cavalieri, Teenagers March chairman, funds raised by the march go to support research and patient care at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

Over 70 per cent of funds necessary to support the institution come from the efforts of teenage volunteers.

The research institution, founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is dedicated to finding cures for catastrophic childhood diseases: Cancer, muscle disorders and even malnutrition.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research institution in the world, in terms of numbers of patients and treatment success.

Cavalieri said teenage volunteers will march from house to house until every family in the area has been asked to give. Marchers will wear big Danny Thomas badges for identification.

"We have issued a call for volunteers to all of the schools in the area and as always the teenager response has been outstanding," Cavalieri said.

New Positivism Grips the World

By MICHELLE CARTER

When Malachi Martin looks around him all over the world, he sees uncertainty, cruelty, confusion and cynicism. But what he feels is something else entirely.

This 55-year-old author-philosopher and former Jesuit has begun to sense a strange new sense of commonality or mutuality among the people of the world. Neither skin color, sex, religion nor age really matter. It's an expression of compassion, concern, hope and other positive intangibles.

He interprets this mutuality of feeling among people to signal another high spiritual point (another "castle") in the history of the world. His latest book, "The New Castle," (E. P. Button, $3.95 paperback), traces previous "castles" in history by studying the movements born in such places as Mecca, Jerusalem, Rome and Wittenberg.

He talked about his book and his interpretation of current social trends in a recent telephone interview.

Dr. Martin believes that this new positivism, which is just starting to express itself, is a "shadowy beginning" of entirely new relationships that will transform the way husband and wife, mother and child, friend and lover act towards one another.

To him, this "implosion" of positive feelings, that he expects to be the identifying symbol of our generation, is the work of "spirit."

Spirit, according to Dr. Martin's interpretation, has nothing whatsoever to do with religion, but it has much to do with public morality. Spirit is the means of communicating among people of the world that demands "no reasoning; it's just that which makes me trust you. We are incarnated in spirit," he explains.

This former Vatican scholar sees this ascendancy of spirit as a reaction to generations of "chauvinism," that character flaw that allows me to judge you on the basis of some accident of history. Now we have begun to say "Forget it." This is a totally new spirit of perception; people can now love for reasons that were never accepted before.

"Chauvinism has vitiated this country's moral power and created a hurting, raging, public immorality. But the people are beginning to express their own revulsion that was previously unspoken."

Americans are the guinea pigs in history, and again it will be the Americans who will put this new positivism to work the soonest.

"Things happen here 10 to 20 years before anywhere else in the world. Americans know and feel that grace and love and courage that makes all things possible."

Because of these spiritual trends in society, Dr. Martin predicts "lots of local anarchies — localized geographically or socially to a specific strata of people."

A very special guest will make tonight's regular monthly meeting of the Holy Angels Women's Guild a very unique event, according to word from the guild's publicity chairwoman Mrs. David J. Rushka.

Thomas Scortia, author of the terrifying book about a fire in one of those mormouth skyscrapers, "The Glass Inferno," will be the speaker at tonight's gathering beginning at 8 p.m.

"The Glass Inferno" is one of two books used in the preparation of the screen play for "The Towering Inferno," the major motion picture that was filmed in San Francisco a few months ago.

Members, their guests, and the general public are invited to attend this meeting in the Holy Angels Catholic Church parish hall.

ALFRED COPPEL'S book "34 East" will be the subject of a review by James Wyatt, dean of students at Skyline College, to be given tomorrow evening in the Coral Room of the Westlake Branch of the Daly City Library.

The review is sponsored by the Friends of the Daly City Library and Mrs. Margaret Kincaid, review chairwoman, calls your attention to the fact that the program has been planned for 8 p.m. to accommodate members of the public who are unable to attend day meetings and would enjoy hearing Wyatt speak.

No reservations are necessary.

MRS. KATHY GALVIN, subbing for ailing Girl Scout swimming commissioner, Mrs. Bunne Pardini, has been hard at work scheduling the swim program for November and she is ready to launch the series with an open troop swim event tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Jefferson High School Pool.

Cadettes and Seniors will be swimming on Nov. 14, and Brownies will get into the swim on Nov. 21. There will be no swimming on the last Thursday of the month because of the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

All swim nights are from 7 to 9 p.m. and girls must bring their green Girl Scout permission slips. Contact Mrs. Galvin for swimming night reservations for your group!

When they aren't splashing about in Jefferson's pool, most of the girls will be out ringing door bells and selling those lovely Girl Scout Calendars. The 1975 calendars went on sale Friday and will be sold until Nov. 24 by the girls in their green or brown uniforms.

This new calendar features some faces familiar to many Daly City residents. The January picture shows members of Daly City Troop 446 chatting with a California State Park Ranger at the San Francisco Maritime Museum. Identifiable in the picture are Mrs. Pat Knox, Mrs. Caroline Futrell and Mrs. Jewel Dexter, the leaders, and scouts Janet Leong, Donna Salkind and Deborah Thomas.

Calendars sell for $1 and of that amount 15 cents goes directly to the troop selling the calendar and 50 cents per girl can be credited to her council "share of belonging." The remaining portion of the $1 is used to pay for the calendars. Therefore, any purchaser may feel assured that every cent of the profit goes to benefit the scout from whom he buys the calendar.

MRS. GEORGE SIGIGIE and Mrs. Henry Norman, chairpersons of Holy Angels Women's Guild's annual parish social, remind members and their friends that the Big Night is coming up this weekend.

The Social will be held on Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the Elk's Club in South San Francisco. Dancing to the music of the Keynotes will begin at 9 p.m. The roast beef dinner will follow the no-host cocktail hour with serving scheduled at 8 p.m.

Mrs. David Rushka, the publicity chairwoman, indicates.

cated that some tickets may yet be available at $9.50 per person. Anyone interested in attending should call Mrs. Sigie or Mrs. Norman immediately.

MEMBERS OF THE FIFTY PLUS Club of Pacifica are reminded that it will be "all aboard" for Carson City and Reno on Thursday morning, Nov. 14.

The group will leave Pacifica for Carson City, where the members will enjoy the sights and games during the afternoon and evening. They will spend the night in the capital city and have breakfast before trekking north to Reno for the afternoon.

The bus is filled to capacity but if you are anxious to go, call Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg and put your name on the waiting list — someone might have to cancel!

Speaking of Reno, the Fifty Plus members aren't the only ones preparing to visit our eastern neighbor. The Holy Angels Latin Club will be sponsoring a trip to Reno and Sparks on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 16 and 17.

The fun and games will start as soon as the buses leave the parking area in front of the Holy Angels Catholic Church!

For reservations or more information about the trip call Mr. and Mrs. Nemer Gonzalez, 992-3591, as soon as possible. Space is going fast!

Looking ahead the club is beginning to mount an effort to make this year's Latin Club Christmas party for the children of the Daly City area the biggest and best yet!

The economy may not be in the healthiest condition but there is no depression of spirits among the faithful workers, and they hope the local merchants and business people will feel optimistic and filled with the spirit of giving as they consider contributing to the success of this very large undertaking.

Several hundred children enjoy the fun, food and games at the annual gathering, and the members of the Latin Club hope to be able to expand the number of children attending the Dec. 21 Christmas Fiesta. To assure adequate decorations, good food and gifts the officers are seeking to involve members of local scouting programs and students in Daly City's three high schools.

This is the type of party that the entire community can feel a part of and be proud of, according to Mrs. Gonzalez. If you have time, talent or a contribution of money or goods which you would like to pledge to help make this party a success please call Mrs. Martha Ruiz, 994-0499.

DO YOU HAVE FOND memories of high school and college dances in the '50s and '60s? If you do, the Surprise Dance at Our Lady of Mercy Parish Hall on Friday, Nov. 15, is your cup of tea.

According to Mrs. Lin Dougherty, publicity chairperson, the dance committee has arranged a fun evening of dancing to the music that was popular in the '50s, and '60s era, contests, a fashion parade when the party goes will show off their finest in the styles of "yesteryear" and to top top the evening, a midnight buffet.

Mrs. James Barnett, 755-5159, will accept calls for tickets. Cost per couple will be $5. A reservations deadline has been set for Nov. 13.

"WHAT CAN I DO NOW, MOMMY?" will be the subject under discussion at the general meeting of the Peninsula Association for Gifted Students (PAGS) on Nov. 12 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. George Oleyar, publicity chairwoman for PAGS, reports that representatives from the Peoples Computer Company, the Marine Ecological Institute and the San Mateo County library system will be on hand to give parents a variety of ideas to help keep their children active and intellectually stimulated.

The session will be held in the San Mateo School District board room, 50 Peninsula Ave. in San Mateo at 8 p.m.

MRS. JACK ELSDON and Mrs. Bill Pappas are accepting calls for reservations to "Laces and Graces" the exhibit of 100 years of fashion being sponsored by the North Peninsula Circle Florence Crittenton Services on Nov. 20.

Mrs. Edward Macklin is show chairwoman and Mrs. Harold Tonini is in charge of models. Mrs. Donald Wilson is the investment chairwoman.

CHILDREN LOVE puppets at any time of the year, but the holiday season always seems like an especially delightful time for programs designed to please the youngest members of the household.

The Lake Merced Play School, a parent cooperative, non-profit nursery school on Bell Avenue, has arranged a special holiday program featuring the Norman Barry Puppets which will be presented on Nov. 23 in the Golden West YMCA on Twentieth Avenue at Eucalyptus Drive in San Francisco.

According to Mrs. Mary Breen, publicity chairwoman for the event, the puppet show will begin at 10 a.m. and tickets may be purchased that day, at the door, or reserved earlier by calling the school, 755-5047. All proceeds from the show will be used by the school to provide educational materials. Tickets will be sold for $1 per person for adults and 75 cents per child.

Senegalese Dancers in Return Date

The National Dance Company of Senegal, remembered for several previous highly successful Bay Area appearances, returns to Zellerbach Auditorium on the U.C. Berkeley campus, Nov. 6, beginning at 8 p.m.

The 40 energetic members of the troupe are now in their third coast-to-coast tour, having appeared in the U.S. for the first time in 1971. They have since presented over 300 performances in North America.

In honor of the 15th anniversary of the founding of the group, the Senegalese have prepared a new program. It includes batteries of drummers from four different regions of Senegal performing on the diakhanke, soce, wolof and the diola, not to mention their authentic talking drum.

HALLOWEEN PARADE

Halloween Parade At Colma School

Children and teachers, dressed in costumes of foreign lands joined in parade with goblins, pirates and witches Thursday at Colma K-6 School to celebrate Halloween in a special way.

This multi-cultural festival, which was highlighted by story telling and custom sharing, is all part of the Early Childhood Education Program developing at Colma this year.

It is hoped that programs like this will expand the cultural awareness of each child so that he will appreciate and understand both the native and secondary cultures affecting the community.

During the present school year, students will study outstanding figures of many cultures. In addition learning centers will be set up in individual classrooms where children can display and examine artifacts of other lands. Through music, art, literature and culinary arts, children will be able to have some real experiences involving other cultures.

Involvement by community members, parents and older children in discussions, projects, cooking and experiences will highlight the program.

With the arrival of the holidays, Colma K-6 students will be preparing for a multi-cultural Christmas experience. Students are learning songs, stories and legends of foreign lands. These will be presented at a special Christmas show for parents and community.

With the help of state funding, many changes and innovations are also taking place at Colma K-6 in the curriculum areas of math, health, reading, art and physical education.

Girl Demands to Play Flag Football

A 9-year-old girl last week demanded at the Pacifica City Council meeting to be permitted to play flag football.

"I can't join the boys team," she complained, "and they don't have a girls team."

She was Chris Collum, 213 Hillside Drive, a 5th grade student at Vallemar School. Mayor Aubrey Lumley invited her to appear before the next Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission meeting.

Chris explained later that she practices with the Vallemar team regularly, but is not allowed to play in a league game, since the team is afraid that the game might be forfeited.

She said she loves to play the game, which is not tackle football. In flag football, opposing players try to grab a small flag attached to a ball carrier's belt.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks. Recently I discovered and tested a most delicious recipe for a fish and potato casserole. The dish was delightfully simple to fix, most inexpensive and was well received by my family. The recipe was on the box of fillets of herring packed by Connors Bros. Limited, of Canada.

CROFTER CASSEROLE

- 2 tins (32 ounces each) fillets of Herring, drained
- 2 cups thinly sliced onions
- 3 cups thinly sliced raw potatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1/2 cup light cream

- 1 to 2 Tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
- 2 Tablespoons butter

Grease a 14-quart casserole and in it arrange layers of the two cups onions, three cups potatoes and two tins herring fillets, ending with a layer of potatoes. Season each layer with salt and pepper and dot the onions with one tablespoon butter. Pour in the half cup light cream, sprinkle with the two tablespoons bread crumbs and dot with the remaining one tablespoon butter. Cover and bake 35 minutes at 400-degrees. Remove cover and bake 10 minutes longer to brown topping. Serves 4 to 6.

Since the crofter casserole requires baking in the oven you might want to make a cake ahead and thus the oven heat will do double duty.

RASISIN CAKE

- 1 cup raisins
- 1 1/4 cups water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 Tablespoon butter
- 1 Tablespoon cocoa

Combine the cup raisins with the one and one-fourth cups water, one cup sugar and one tablespoon each butter and cocoa — in saucepan. Bring to boil (until butter melts) then remove from heat and set aside to cool

- 2 cups flour
- pinch salt
- three-fourths teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves

- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- three-fourths teaspoon baking soda

Sift together the two cups flour, salt, three-fourths teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon cinnamon, half teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon nutmeg and three-fourths teaspoon soda. Combine with cooled raisin mixture and pour into greased and floured loaf pan, 9x5x3-inches. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. Cool and frost.

FROSTING

- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 1/4 cube butter, melted
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla milk

Combine the one cup powdered sugar, one-fourth cube butter, melted and half teaspoon vanilla. Add enough milk to make a spreading consistency. This makes enough frosting for the top of one loaf cake. The cake is so rich that just frosting the top is all that's needed.

Stroke Club Sets Guest Speaker

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Frank and Fannie Back From Vacation

Frank and Fannie Torres are back in action at their Montara Beach restaurant following an extensive vacation. In addition to offering South American specialties of the house, they have one of the most spectacular views of the Pacific Coast while dining. At night the beach area below is illuminated to bring out all the ruggedness and grandeur of the Pacific as it dashes its way shoreward. Jack Ghio, owner of Steaks Unique, one of Nine Garden Restaurants located on the lower level of the Tanforan Park Shopping Center, is now featuring a great one-time offer: A "Big John" steak (three-quarter pound Choice Top Sirloin) is just $3.59 — and that includes baked potato, garlic bread and a side order of spaghetti. This special will be featured at Steak's Unique through Nov. 17. Cisco and Boston Mason, who have been entertaining at Vince Russo's two restaurants, The Eggplant in Burlingame and The Distillery in San Bruno, have departed for a two-week gig up Oregon way. They will be returning (with their new gal vocalist, Kit Williams) to the Peninsula right after this engagement.

RHYTHM AND SOUND

Valerian is entertaining nightly, Tuesdays through Saturdays, at the Grand piano in the lounge of Adrian Stickney's Shirt Tail, in Palo Alto.

Moonraker Ideal for Special Xmas Parties

The gourmet dinners served at The Moonraker, located a stone's throw from the swells of the Pacific ocean at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, are something to rave about. Elegant entrees are menu features that attract diners from all points. Captain Charles, situated on the floor below, is well regarded for its gourmet seafood specialties. There is an air of casual refinement and friendliness here. Reservations for Holiday parties are already being taken at Nick's Restaurant, another Nick Gust enterprise located across the street and on the water's edge. There is a perfect party room situated just off the lounge area which will accommodate large groups for any occasion. Rain, snow or sunshine, Nevada Tours continues to arrange Drive-up packages (or straight reservations) for those driving to South and North Lake Tahoe, Reno, Carson City and Las Vegas. Also ask Kay about the charter arrangements for large groups.

Vince's Italian and Seafood Dine-Out Treat

No need to take a lengthy drive to enjoy a seafood dinner. Vince Licata's Italian and Seafood restaurant on El Camino Real could be a Fisherman's Wharf transplant. Eat in or take out orders are available, and the menu offers an array of appetizing dishes. A courteous reception, whether you're by yourself or with a large party, is a fair index to you're dining experience here. Many changes have taken place at the Ben Jonson restaurant in the Cannery. Manager Phil Crowley reports that besides new carpeting and repolished furnishings for the restaurant, the serving wenches will have new costumes. "Festa Italiana" has returned to the Holiday Inn, in Belmont. This special Italian feast was such a Friday night success last year that General Manager Joe De Dio will make it a dining enticement at the Inn until the end of 1974. Beginning Friday, Nov. 8, the buffet-style dinner will be featured from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and will include soup, a variety of salads, gnocchi, spaghetti, meat balls, sausages and garlic bread. Also dessert and a glass of red wine.

Maerd Eip Dessert At Scotty Campbell's

A superb way to finish your dinner at Scotty Campbell's, a Redwood City restaurant ranked as one of the Peninsula's most outstanding, is the Maerd Eip, a light-as-air cheesecake delicacy. This is a busy gathering place before and after performances at nearby Circle Star Theater. Vladimir Tupy, of Roos/Atkins World Travel Bureau, entertained visiting Pan American New York Vice President John L. Robertson at dinner here, one recent evening. During the bustling luncheon hours at Christopher's in downtown San Mateo you'll find co-owners Ed Murphy and Tom Chagis "on the line" carving the turkey and ham and preparing the restaurant's popular Submarine Sandwiches. Needless to say, both get quite a work-out during the midday rush. Murray Lehr, head gardener at Lehr's Greenhouse garden restaurant in San Francisco, flies in a big shipment of fresh Hawaiian papayas every week for his bountiful salad bar. The papayas are also available to take home at modest cost at the picturesque Hawaiian Produce Counter near the restaurant's entrance.

Many titles have been bestowed on Enrico Romano, owner of Romano's Italian restaurant and pizza palace in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, for his pizza excellence. Whatever you choose to call this "Shah of Salami" and "Apostle of Anchovies," the likeable restaurateur continues to live up to his reputation of giving the coastside the very best in Italian dinners and pizza variety. For a festive evening of dinner, cocktails, dancing and two exciting floor shows, the Mabuhay Gardens is truly an adventure. Celia and The Golden Goodies, a group of beautiful and talented Filipino girls, return to this San Francisco supper club for a brief engagement Wednesday night through Nov. 10. For the unusual in Filipino cuisine, the "Sultan's Family Dinner" is a feast of plenty.

Finocchio's Enjoys World Wide Fame

Movie actor Hisaya Morishige, the so-called Paul Newman of Japan, was among a Japanese group to recently applaud Finocchio's revue of world-famous female impersonators. Tour groups from all over the world consider this nightlife attraction as a "must see" when in San Francisco. Those having an appreciation for exquisite veal dishes will find three on the menu at Fred Martinelli's Oliver's in South San Francisco that guarantee food raves. Veal Scaloppini, Breaded Veal Cutlet and Veal Cutlet a la Parmigiana, and all are served a la carte or on the complete dinner. The Hamburger Haven, a new restaurant in the Tanforan Park Shopping Center, San Bruno, is off to a rousing good start. Open for breakfast, lunch, dinner and cocktails, and specializing in hamburgers (17 different varieties). Folk singer Strider is captivating the cocktail crowds in the Back Door Lounge of the Royal Inn, South San Francisco. The expert guitarist entertains each evening, Mondays through Fridays, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Linda Lehr has opened a new gift shop and art gallery in downtown San Mateo — Lehr's Elegant Barn, at 91 East Third Avenue. Her handcrafted jewelry, Indian jewelry and silverware will be featured along with paintings by Ronnie Lehr, whose studio has moved to the new shop. Ronnie Lehr's paintings are also being shown and sold at Phil Lehr's Steakery, in San Francisco.

Administration of Criminal Justice

Skyline Videotape Wins Award

"A Writ of Possession and Eviction," a Skyline College Administration of Justice videotape, was the winner of a top award from the Western Educational Society of Telecommunications (WEST) presented during the annual WEST conference held recently at the Holiday Inn in San Francisco.

Skyline's tape won over entries from 13 other western states for the top prize in the Instructional Television Category. The project also won "The Best in the West Award" over fellow instructional TV producers and educators from the Universities of Utah, Hawaii, California State at Fullerton and the Utah Board of Education.

The 25 minute videotape winner is designed to teach young deputy marshalls and sheriffs how to perform a forcible eviction under orders from the court.

Project director Douglas Oliver, Skyline instructor, explained the purpose of the project as being, "part of a program designed to produce instruction material for this campus as well as other campuses or training center."

"The idea has been around our San Bruno campus for four years," Oliver stated. "Its purpose is to provide appropriate training for those who work in court in either a clerical or uniform job."

The federally funded instructional program reenacts the writ of possession procedure as it actually occurs. The videotape was recorded at the Walnut Creek-Danville Judicial district with the cooperation of its employees.

"We depended on the people who actually do this work in order to show the correct operation," Skyline spokesman Oliver stated.

The project took approximately six months to complete.

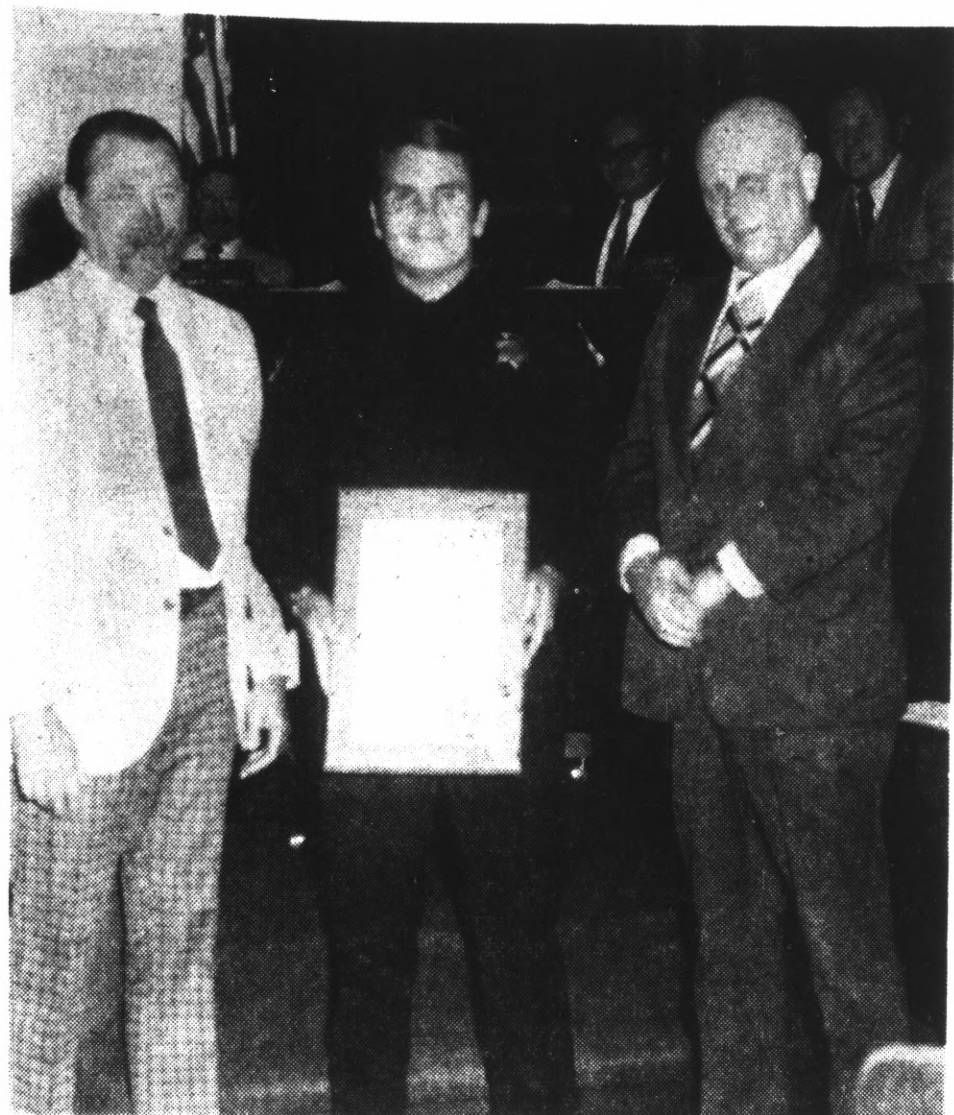

The winning program is one of approximately 40 videotapes which should be completed by early next year. It was funded by a grant from the office of Criminal Justice Planning in Sacramento.

The completed tapes will be distributed throughout the state where they will be used to train court support personnel.

The court support project was staffed by Skyline classified staff. They consist of Theani Loskos, producer and script writer; Alvin Bowens, director of photography and editor; Doug Barry, research and narrator; Jan Kirkpatrick, graphics and production assistant. Skyline's Media specialist provided expertise and assistance to the project. Logistical support was provided by Media Center director Robert Beggs and his staff.

Project staff members have extensive TV backgrounds including work at the Indiana University, San Francisco State University, and London, England. Doug Barry received an Emmy Award nomination for a program about Dr. Benjamin Spock which was viewed nationally last year on the Public Broadcasting System.

AWARD FOR HEROISM

Flanked by Daly City Mayor McRobert Stewart (left) and Police Chief David Hansen (right) officer Bob Hyink displays council resolution commending him for bravery in risking his life to pull an injured man to safety during apartment house fire at 27 Hillside Hillcrest Drive. Hyink is a two year veteran of department. Crawling on hands and knees he pulled Donald McLeod, 70, from blaze in pre-dawn fire.

Drivers Plead Not Guilty

Six truck drivers pleaded not guilty last week to charges of grand theft and embezzlement in connection with an alleged theft of 156,000 pounds of telecommunication cable from Western Electric Company, the district attorney's office reported today.

The defendants will appear in Northern Judicial Court in South San Francisco at a preliminary hearing Dec. 9.

They are Joseph A. Martin, 788 Templeton Ave.,

Daly City; Louis C. Brunan, 109 Rockridge Road, San Carlos; Garcion E. Forrest, 1767 Junipero Ave., San Bruno; William T. Millar, 220 Northwood Drive, South San Francisco; and Joseph A. Sangimino and Elbert D. McClammy of San Francisco.

A businessman, Lowell S. "Bud" Simon, also arrested in connection with the alleged theft was arraigned last Thursday on charges of buying stolen property and grand theft.

He was owner of Ace Metal Co., 153 S. Maple Ave., South San Francisco, but sold it after his arrest.

He waived his preliminary hearing — and his Superior Court jury trial was set Feb. 18. He is free on his own recognizance.

According to Stanley Poling, assistant district attorney, an investigation by detectives showed that from May 1, 1973 to March 1, 1974 the six truck drivers, while employed by Dealer's Transit Inc., allegedly drove the telecommunication cable to the Ace Metals Co. and sold it there for an estimated $30,000.

The men, according to the district attorney, were instructed by Dealer's to transport the copper cable to a recycling drop-off center, where it was to have been processed for re-use by Western Electric Company.

Dealer's Transit Inc., is a sub-contractor for Western Electric Co., which in turn is a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Poling said the investigation, which culminated early this month, was conducted by Detective Douglas McCool of the South San Francisco Police Department and Inspector John Varni of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Cultural Center Considered

The possibility of establishing a cultural center somewhere in San Mateo County received serious consideration Wednesday during a meeting of the county's Arts Council.

William Nemoyn, executive director of the council, said that, although there appears to be a need for such a facility, funding for it would probably be a major problem.

Several persons in the audience of about 40, many of them artists, expressed a desire for either a single center or, perhaps, a more de-centralized program.

One artist, Poppy Francisco of Burlingame, offered that, "Every new, major building in the county should set aside space for artists."

A Daly City spokesman, Carter Rose, pointed out that, while this county may be one of the most affluent in the nation, "it is also among the most culturally deprived."

A San Mateo artist, Eleanor Bates Streloff suggested that the county ought to have artistic consultation on the design of proposed new buildings here.

She said the county's Planning Commission ought to seek the advice of the Arts Council concerning the esthetic quality of new structures because "the ugly buildings around here are offensive to citizens of the county and any visitors who come here."

The meeting, the first public gathering of the council in its two-year history, was held at San Mateo City Hall.

Browne Resigns as CC Society Director

Directors of the Society for Crippled Children and Adults of San Mateo County, Inc., have accepted the resignation of Ed Browne, the organization's executive director since 1968, it was learned Friday.

The matter did not come up at the general membership meeting, when 125 volunteers and leaders met at the Villa Chartier Friday night to elect new officers and present awards.

Browne, who has made his resignation tentatively effective Jan. 1 to allow time to select a replacement, presented merit awards at the membership meeting to a number of volunteers.

Browne denied, in discussing the matter with The Times, that he was resigning because of a basic disagreement in fiscal policy of the Easter Seal organization.

He said that he was resigning because the directors had asked that he move here from Santa Rosa, where he has lived many years, and from where he has commuted daily.

"My children are in school and my roots are in Santa Rosa," Browne said. He added that he was tired of the 3½-hour commute and that the cost of living in San Mateo was appreciably higher than in Santa Rosa.

Browne admitted that there had been differences between him and the board over fiscal policy but said they had been there for some time and that the issue had not come to any climax.

Some members of the board, including both the incoming and out-going presidents, said that the Society is facing a financial crisis in attempting to keep a full program operating due to inflation.

Although the Society funds have increased in the past year, they have not kept pace with the dwindling dollar, it was indicated.

Outgoing president Ben Knight said that Browne did not want to cut any services but that the board felt there would have to be actions taken to keep the Society activities within the budget.

In addition to inflationary pressures, he said, Medi-Cal and Medi-Care programs are using the blue pencil more and more.

New president Hugh Connolly, who took office Friday night, said there has been an overall increase in operating costs and increase in revenues "haven't kept pace."

SSF Blitzes Regents

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

Having been there before meant a great deal to the title-bound South San Francisco Warriors Friday night at Clifford Field.

"There" in this case is in a title chase. The Warriors, who have seemingly endlessly challenged for or won the North Peninsula League championship, took on Serramonte's Regents, who were getting their first taste of upper-echelon action in their seven-year history.

The experience stood the Warriors in good stead as they took a convincing 31-6 win to remain undefeated, and may have dropped the Regents right out of the race.

In other NPL action, Westmoor stayed right in the chase with a 20-0 victory over winless Jefferson; El Camino rallied in the last quarter to defeat Half Moon Bay, 20-7, and Terra Nova just did get by Oceana, 10-7.

Once again the Warriors were able to generate a killing aerial attack. Little motion was wasted as senior thrower Frank Cesarz hit on all his first five attempts and six of eight total in getting 141 yards and two touchdowns.

Cesarz threw his first pass to Jim Selvitella for a 28-yard score in the first quarter, hit three more in a row, then connected with Tony DeMattei from the 13 just 15 seconds before half-time for a second TD.

It was close until the last three-plus minutes of the half. Leading 7-0 then, the Warriors got a three-yard burst from fullback Bob Luster at 3:37 and with 1:16 left Arias booted a 34-yard

Finally with 5:33 left, Tong snapped over from the six to put the game away. Jefferson's offense again couldn't get going. The Indians totaled just 51 yards with there until the Sharks were forced to punt late in the final quarter.

Terra Nova started at its own 45 and six plays later with a fourth-and-one situa-

Caught From The Side

South San Francisco lineman Henry Funcke grabs Serramonte's running back A. Campbell on an end around play during Friday's action at Clifford Field.

field goal to preface DeMattei's catch.

Westmoor 20, Jefferson 0

Fullback Dan Tong punched through a tough Jefferson defense for two head-snapping touchdowns leading the Rams to this victory. Jefferson had lost its four previous games by a combined 12-point total; this was the biggest score the Indians have allowed.

The game was much closer than the score might indicate. Westmoor led just 7-0 most of the way after Tong's seven-yard run on the second play of the second quarter. The Ram aerial game was not clicking at all and Jeff's defense wouldn't allow any long gainers so heads knocked to little avail, only one rushing first down the whole game.

Dave Waterman kicked a

28-yard field goal with just 1:20 remaining to give the Tigers the game and the Anchor Trophy, symbol of gridiron dominance in Pacifica.

The Tigers, unable to run well, opened up their aerial game early as Rich Stratfull found Andy Menjidez on a 55-yard scoring pass midway through the first quarter.

Dennis Murray tied the game just before halftime when he gathered in a screen pass and raced 57 yards to make it 7-7. The game stayed tied from the 11. Waterman won it with a perfect boot.

Two touchdown passes from Gene Montgomery to John Rico, one a 33 and the other a 15-yarder, led the Colts to a comeback win over winless HMB.

The Cougars scored first when quarterback Scott

Jones threw to flanker Chris Goetz who threw to Joe Dale on a fancy 36-yarder just before halftime.

Rico's first TD reception tied the score and his second won it.

Camino's defense nabbed four interceptions, three in the second half, and the Colts continually proved to be their own worse enemies as they were caught on 10 penalties for 100 yards.

Korbut Show Is Sellout

The sold-out sign has been run-up for the Olga Korbut headlined U.S.S.R. Gymnastics Team appearance at the Cow Palace November 12. Harry Papazian, promotions director for the sponsoring San Francisco Examiner, announced that all 13,139 seats at the Cow Palace have been sold.

Proceeds from the exhibition will help in the development of gymnastics in the U.S.A., through the U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

Local Girls All-American

Eight Peninsula girls have been selected to the All-American Track and Field team by the AAU Women's Track and Field Committee.

Heading the list is Marilyn King, the Pentathlon champion from the Millbrae Lions Track Club. Also named from the Millbrae team are javelin thrower Cathy Sulinski and the 440 yard relay team, composed of Ginger Lewis, Cathy Hardeman, Yolanda Allen and Elaine Parker.

Young Chris Sakelarios, the premiere one-mile walk champion of the Redwood City Flyers, and Lynn Cannon, a javelin thrower from the Red City Striders, were also named to the All-American team.

Examine the Record First

Instead of criticizing — or praising — the Bonds for Murcer trade emotionally, perhaps we should examine it by the record, the cold, hard book facts; which, admittedly, aren't always truly indicative of an athlete's total field performance, but which are better than plain emotion.

Both players, as we know are outfielders; both, in fact, right fielders, though Murcer was switched this year while Bonds, for years now a right fielder (filling in occasionally in center), was at one time thought a possible successor to Willie Mays. Both are 28, although Bonds is two months older than Murcer. Both are purported to be super stars, are still possibly have the potential for it, but neither has had really outstanding seasons back-to-back. And both were certainly picked as replacements for genuine super stars. Bonds for Mays, as mentioned, and Murcer for Mickey Mantle.

Bonds has played six full seasons and one partial season; Murcer, six full seasons and parts of two others. He was in the military service during two years when he almost certainly would have played regularly. Bonds has appeared in 1014 games, Murcer in 958. Neither has had serious injuries. Both have expressed discontent with management (Another of those jerk-for-jerk trades?)

It wouldn't be quite accurate or fair to determine their seasonal statistical average on a strict year-by-year basis, since Bonds has not only played more games than Murcer, but has also been to bat many more times because he has usually batted lead-off, while Murcer has generally been in the three-four slot. Thus what follows is a statistical comparison based on what both players have managed every 540 times to bat, which is generally about a normal season for official times at bat for an average big league regular.

	R	H	2B	3B	HR	RBI	SB	AVG.
BONDS	102	148	25	5	6	24.8	73.7	35.1
MURCER	79.8	152	23.6	4.2	21.1	81.6	14	28.2

BONDS' EDGE in runs scored can obviously be attributed to his general slot in the order as lead-off man, just as Murcer's edge in RBI can be attributed to his always batting lower, with more men on base. The doubles and triples edge to Bonds can perhaps be attributed to his definite edge in speed. They would be a more valid measure of speed comparisons than the stolen base column, because Bonds, especially as a lead-off batter, has simply attempted more steals than are required of a man in a slugging spot in the order. Make no mistake, Murcer CAN run. Nobody plays center field in spacious Yankee Stadium for four years without having some legs. He may even be a steadier base runner than the sometimes apathetic Bonds. But true, he's not in the sprinter class of Bonds.

Ironically, it may be in the homerun department where Bonds has the higher practical edge. Don't forget, until Candlestick was renovated, Bond hit in one of the toughest parks in the majors for a right handed power hitter. Until Murcer moved to Shea Stadium this year, he hit in one of the best parks in the majors for a left handed power hitter.

In Shea Stadium this year — which is relatively tough for lefties — Murcer hit only two or three out (10 for the season for all parks), and then not until the last week or two of the season. But a lot of that may have been psychological, since Murcer was apparently dead set against Shea as a hitter's park before he took his first swing there. And the switch to right field didn't help his psyche any, either. On the other hand, reports are that Murcer has been going more to the other field, anyway, so is not as strict as pull hitter as he once was, which may make him a better hitter in the future. At any rate, Murcer's homerun capacity in Candlestick may lie somewhere between what it was at Yankee Stadium and at Shea, or somewhat better if the Shea stats reflected merely a psyche job rather than a physical shortcoming. In which case Murcer should be able to hit at least close to 20 out a year playing in Candlestick.

Murcer, especially if he has decided to go more for the hits (three years ago he hit .331, a figure never approached by Bonds, may indeed end up being a more valuable player to the Giants than was Bonds. Bonds was physically suited to be a third or fourth batter, but he always insisted that he was more comfortable leading off, and while his long ball hitting was sensational and unusual for a lead-off man, a lot of his power went wasted. For a lead-off man, he struck out too much, didn't get on base quite often enough. And when he was occasionally lowered in the lineup, he often went into a slump, as the pressure of having to drive runs in seems to affect him. Thus, with Bonds out of the picture, the Giants can now concentrate on developing more of a prototype leadoff man, while Murcer, a hustling, fiery type who seems to enjoy the challenge of pressure, is probably more emotionally suited than Bonds for the third-fourth slot.

And perhaps most important for the Giants, Murcer seems more the type — once he becomes acquainted and acclimated — to be a team leader than Bonds. And, since Willie McCovey took his leave, the Giants have been without a good left handed power hitter.

Had we been able to make an amendment to the trade, we would have been more satisfied with Yankee third basemen Graig Nettles, a left handed power hitter and a fine defensive player. A third baseman, we feel, is a bigger Giant need than another starting pitcher. But then the Yankees would have had to sweeten the pot with a little something extra, and that might have killed the deal. So we'll personally be content with Murcer.

Bulldogs Take First Place

CSM Razzle-Dazzle Works

By FRED BAER
Post Correspondent

The script called for a routine romp over a so-so Laney football team as College of San Mateo planned to take undisputed first place in the Golden Gate Conference Friday night.

And, although the Bulldogs did strike for two quick scores, they had to come from behind on a late bomb to pull out a 30-26 victory and break a tie for the league lead with idle San Jose.

CSM receiver-kicker-thrower Kevin McCoy unexpectedly topped Laney's all-purpose back Dan Reynolds in the heroics department.

Hillsdale grad McCoy ran under a strike from GGC total offense leader Rudy Castellanos 30 yards downfield on the game's first play and kept going for a 63-yard score.

Paul Brandow's fumble recovery on the Laney 18 led to another TD less than four minutes after the first. Howie Avila getting the final two yards.

But, with less than six minutes left in the game, the Bulldogs found themselves on their own 24, trailing 26-23. McCoy a 6-3, 185 ex-QB, grabbed a screen-style lateral from Castellanos and lofted a long flanker pass to slotback Steve Barnes, who was wide-open on the enemy 35.

Split end Bill Fass' key block enabled Jefferson grad Barnes to complete the 76-yard play for the winning points.

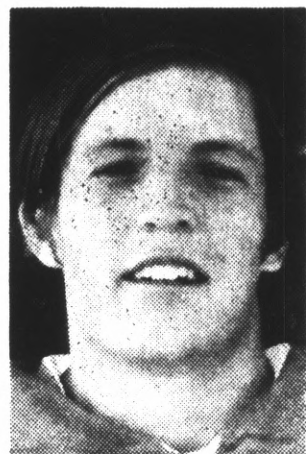

Laney turned a first period CSM fumble into six points as GGC passing leader Joe Martin hit Martyn Chellev on a 22-yard fourth-down strike — but Laney still trailed 23-6 at the half.

Laney turned all three of its third period possessions into TDs, however. (There were 13 fumbles and 12 turnovers in the game.)

Reynolds, who also played the entire game at line-backer, capped the first short drive with a two-yard pass reception from Martin and set-up another tally on a 76-yard run with a Martin screen pass before being caught by CSM's Bill Popin on the two.

Reynolds finally scored on fourth down from the one and caught a two-point conversion pass for a 26-23 Eagle lead. In between those two TDs, John Duncan returned an interception 32 yards for a score.

Bill Popin

CSM's State field goal leader Steve La Plant extended his conference season record to 11 with a 36-yarder in the second quarter, but missed another 36-yard attempt (wide) early in the fourth period. That set up McCoy's final heroics.

Laney threatened to pull it out in the closing minutes on Reynolds' 16-yard pass to the Bulldog 30 off a fake punt play. But receiver Brad Fisher fumbled and Jeff Hansen recovered for San Mateo.

Paul Kilesnikow took a CSM record fourth interception of the year when the Eagles got one last chance from their own 18 with 12 seconds left.

Six 'A' Medals for Peninsula Swimmers

At the De Anza swim meet last week North Peninsula girls brought home six "A" medals and a total of 16 ribbons.

Anita Ruiz headed the group of winners with three "A" times and six ribbons. Anita took two firsts and two medals in the 50 yard freestyle and 100 yard breaststroke in the 10 years and under division. The third medal and fifth place was won in the difficult 200 yard individual medley.

Beatrice Dreyfus won her two "A" medals in the 10 years and under division taking a fourth place in the 100 yard breaststroke and a sixth place in the 200 yard individual medley. Beatrice also won an eighth place ribbon for the fifty yard freestyle.

Cathy Twentyman winning another first place for herself also brought home an "A" medal for the 50 yard breaststroke in the 10 and under girls division.

"A" medals are much sought after by competitive swimmers as they denote the rise of a swimmer to a more advanced level of competition by equalling a time standard in an individual event.

Gina Marcelli and Mary Ann Soto each added to their collection of ribbons. Gina placed second in the 25 yard backstroke, fifth in the 25 yard freestyle, sixth in the 50 yard freestyle, and seventh in the 25 yard butterfly. Mary Ann placed third in the 50 yard freestyle and eighth in the 100 yard backstroke.

Cochair Skip Holcomb directs North Peninsula Swim Club practice at South San Francisco High School Monday through Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. Interested swimmers are welcome continually throughout the year.

For details concerning membership contact Ms. Linda Marcelli at 878-9080 or Ms. Joan Ruiz 589-3473.

OLM English Grade Girls Wins Basketball Tourney

In the most exciting game of the three day tournament. Our Lady of Mercy defeated St. Andrews 16-9 in the first annual eighth grade girls' basketball tournament co-sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Division and Holy Angels School.

After a 9-8 half-time score, OLM used its half court press to thoroughly battle up the St. Andrews' offense. Alana Modena tallied nine points for the champions and also played a key role in the pressing defense.

OLM got to the final game with victories over St. James by a 25-10 score and a 35-16 victory over Holy Name. In its only game before the finals, St. Andrews defeated St. Emydus 19-10.

In the consolation championships, St. James used a devastating fast break to easily handle Holy Angels 24-3. It was in this game that the individual high point scoring record was set. Joan Sullivan scored 20 points in a fantastic shooting display of all types of shots from both inside and out.

Other teams that participated in this first annual tournament were: St. Thomas More, Holy Name and St. Emydus.

Colma Creek, Orange Park to the Bay

Outlook Dim for Park to Bay Trails

The outlook seems dim for the development of a parkway with bike and foot trails along both sides of the nearly 2.5 mile stretch of Colma Creek from Orange Park to the Bay.

The proposed linear park is listed as having an "essential" priority in the South San Francisco general plan. It includes "landscaping and creation of a parklike atmosphere along the creek," and would be formed in conjunction with the ongoing Colma Creek flood control project.

But, despite some apparent support from city officials for at least the concept of such a parkway, there are two overriding problems that could block the proposal:

✓ The city can't afford it, according to City Manager Edward Alario. He estimates the cost at $1 million and says it is "economically unfeasible."

✓ There isn't much room for it. According to the plans for the flood control project drawn up by the consulting engineering firm of Wilsey and Ham, very little space, if any, would be available for the parkway along portions of the creek. From a practical standpoint, City Engineer Robert Yee said such a project is not feasible.

Based primarily on these two reasons, Alario said the City Council will be presented in about 60 days with a proposal to drop the parkway from the general plan.

Prior to that, though, the matter will receive some public attention from the Planning Commission at its Nov. 12 meeting at 8 p.m. at the West Orange Library. The commissioners have voiced a desire to at least study the possibility of the parkway. Eugene Mullin said, "it would enhance the quality of life in the city." Wesley Slade remarked that "it is important to the future of the city that the concept of the park be considered."

And City Planner David Hale has expressed enthusiasm to develop a parkway where possible. The Wilsey-Ham report plans for either a six foot fence or retaining wall to line the creek. Hale said the fence would be "an eyesore."

The Planning Commission could recommend that the council consider the feasibility of the linear park.

But Alario is emphatic in his opposition to it, saying that his main concern is fixing the creek. A decision to construct the open space would necessitate a revision in the flow control project plans.

That massive project, which will cost about $11 million, consists of reconstructing the various bridges, widening parts of the creek and lining other sections with concrete. The flood control program has already begun with the replacement of the Spruce Avenue Bridge.

Such changes are needed to prevent a repeat of past damaging floods caused by heavy rains which made the creek overflow. Colma creek runs from Daly City, through Colma to South San Francisco, and then out past the Bayshore Freeway to the bay.

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors has adopted the $8 million Wilsey-Ham prepared plan, for improvements from the Bay to a point near Mission Road and the El Camino Real.

The $8 million project is being paid for by the county and the five cities in the district flood control cities of South San Francisco, Pacifica, Daly City, Colma and San Bruno, and from a tax imposed on the property owners in the flood control zones.

However, a linear park would be totally funded by the city of South San Francisco.

Alario likened the situation to the recent proposal to develop a park on Sign Hill. That project was abandoned when a study determined that the costs would outweigh the benefits afforded by it.

And in referring to the linear park, Alario said the same question had to be asked as to whether it would benefit most of the people. The city manager added that he'd rather see the money spent on a recreation center, some ball fields and for improving the city's parks.

And City Engineer Yee noted that the parkway was "quite remote as far as economics and benefits are concerned. I doubt they could consider it seriously," he said.

But even if the city decided to foot the bill for the open space proposal, the park could not be continuous to the Bay as the general plan indicates.

The major physical obstacle is the area where the creek travels under the Bayshore, from Linden Ave., to the freeway, there are some businesses already on the edge of the channel and railroad tracks that cross over it.

Hale admitted that a bike or walkway couldn't be built at this point, but suggested that a similar path could detour up near Airport Blvd., and then come back down to rejoin the creek on the other side of the freeway.

Yee said another trouble spot could be just past Airport Blvd., where the creek runs along Mitchell Ave.

Although ample room for a parkway exists now, the channel there will be widened from 100 feet to 155 feet. That would leave only four feet on one side and 15 on the other, and might encroach on the bordering property of the Holiday Inn.

He also said the same space problem occurs along both North and South Canal Streets, between Spruce and Linden Ave. Yee said that after the work there, the only available open space for a parkway would be on those already narrow streets.

DC Library Friends to Hold Books Reviews, Discussions

During the month of November The Friends of the Daly City Library are presenting as a community service several different evening programs — a book review and a free series of discussions on the subject of retirement planning.

Nov. 7, at 8 p.m., James Wyatt, dean of students at Skyline College, will review Alfred Coppel's "34 East" in the Coral Room of the Westlake Library. The suspenseful novel derives its name from the meridian of longitude which splits the Sinai Peninsula. The Harcourt Braie Jovanovic publication was selected as a featured alternate of the Book-of-the-Month Club.

The review has been planned by Mrs. H. C. Kincaid, book review chairperson. Refreshments following the program will be assisted by Mrs. Frank Doonan and Irene Farisy.

A three-part series entitled "Kick the Work Habit with Retirement Planning" will be given by Stephen Chios of the Retirement Counseling Corporation on the subject of early and late retirement. Mrs. James Hough, chairperson, has announced the discussions, to be held at the Westlake Public Library, will run from 7-9 p.m. and will cover: Nov. 12, Financial Planning; Nov. 19, Trust and Estate Planning; and Nov. 26, Real Estate Investments.

Catholic Women's College Founder's Day Honored at Champagne Brunch

Founder's Day was celebrated at the recent champagne brunch, given at the faculty lounge of the University of San Francisco by the Bay Area Alumnae of St. Mary's College for Women, at Notre Dame, Indiana, which was 130 years old that day.

Director Emeritus of the National Alumnae Association of St. Mary's, Helen Carroll, was the principal speaker. She informed the Alumnae of current changes on campus and in curriculum, and she recounted the founding of St. Mary's by the French priest, Father Sorin, of Paris, who established it along the lines of a French Convent finishing school, that required high scholastic standing.

Miss Carroll reported on the progress of St. Mary's campus in Rome, Italy, the campus under consideration in Switzerland, and the educational programs in conjunction with the now educational University of Notre Dame, at Innsbruck, Austria and Angers, France.

Miss Carroll dedicated the newly formed St. Mary's

Alumnae Club of San Francisco, which encompasses the north Peninsula down to Belmont. Alumnae living in this area who wish to join may contact the membership chairman, Lois Gamble Robinson, 2333 Pacific Avenue, San Francisco, or call 567-4051.

Officers and chairwomen are: Carolyn Kuter DeBates, San Francisco, president; Lois Gamble Robinson, San Francisco, vice president and membership; Elaine Freitas, Giulio, Marin County, recording secretary; Betty Speith Seidl, corresponding secretary, San Mateo; and Charlette Quinn Jones, Burlingame, publicity.

A 12:30 Mass in Haxes Healy Hall was said by the president of the University of San Francisco, Father McGinnis.

Champagne toasts were given "To the First Legally Authorized Catholic college for Women in the United States, to St. Mary's College for Women, Notre Dame, Indiana on its 130th Birthday."

Revised 'Cyrano' Works Like Magic

In the final analysis, all theater is magic. It doesn't make any difference whether it is realistic or romantic, new or old, classic or absurd. It either works or it doesn't.

"Cyrano de Bergerac" works. American Conservatory Theatre revived its version of Rostand's classic play last Tuesday at the Geary Theatre and this newly restaged version is ever bit as good as the original that starred Peter Donat.

"Cyrano" stands or falls on the performance of the leading roles. Ray Reinhart is superb. He gives us a coarser, more earthly cavalier, less of an intellectual than Donat played him. He is a swordsman soldier — and his opponents are surprised to find him a poet-philosopher as well. Reinhart emphasizes the humor and guttiness in the role and is more menacing than Donat's Cyrano. In the scene where he threatens Ragneau's wife's lover, you believe that "he kills."

William Ball's direction, with able assistance by Geno Barcone, focuses attention on the main characters: Cyrano, the great-nosed, giant-hearted fighter; Christian, his surrogate, and Roxanne, the beautiful heroine. He freezes the large cast into tableaux and lets the principals work in front in slow motion. At best, this device is very effective; when he freezes the chorus, each actor is an individual, relating to other actors and to the whole scene. Ball has obviously studied painting of the mid-17th century and patterned his staging after them.

The supporting cast is excellent with many old friends back doing their familiar roles. Elizabeth Huddle has a great bit as Roxanne's maid. Time Magazine once called her "the best undiscovered actress in the United States." When she enters as the maid, you see why. Her stage personality and strength nearly blow the other actors off the stage and she gets a well deserved round of applause for her tiny part, on her first appearance and final exit.

Robert Mooney brings piquancy and compassion to the role of the pastry chef, Ragneau. Earl Boen is fine as the loyal, masculine Le Bret, captain of the Cadets of Gascoigne and Cyrano's friend. Laird Williamson created an evil and egotistical de Guiche.

Deborah May is one of the many pleasures of watching a company of young actors develop. She's pretty, as duly noted in her title of Miss Indiana of 1970, and she can act too. Her two most difficult scenes, on the balcony when Cyrano is wooing her in the name and disguise of Christian and the final death scene when, after 15 years of weekly visits, Cyrano comes for his final farewell, have dignity and delicacy.

As Christian, the boyish recruit from the country, Stephen Schnetzer does well as the handsome but tongue-tied bumpkin who has no eloquence with words and must rely on Cyrano for wit, manners and expression of his love for Roxanne. He's tall and fair and gives the role a necessary depth of feeling and character.

The setting is flexible and simple with tables, a few benches and chairs that serve as a theater, a tavern, an army camp, barricade and nunnery. Robert Blackman's sets are moved in full view of the audience by the townspeople onstage and soldiers. There is a feel of life and activity about the stage at all time. I especially liked the bower effect of hanging white lace ribbons to create a weeping willow, Spanish moss enclosure.

Robert Fletcher's costumes are textured, combining plush corduroy and smooth leather and soft suede in tones of beige, brown and cream. F. Mitchell Dana's lighting catches the high points of profile: soldiers looking over the barricade toward the Spanish musket fire, Cyrano pointing his sloping facial projectile towards the setting sun.

It is important not to overlook the amount of music ACT employs in its productions. Lee Hoiby is responsible for the symphonic score that adds immeasurably to the effectiveness of the play. The curtain call fanfare that Ball choreographed to Hoiby's music is terrific theater. It pulls the audience up out of its seat in roaring tribute.

ACT's "Cyrano" is a must see for novice or veteran theatergoer.

Ryan Says It's Time to Talk Trade With East

The Soviet Union and its East European satellites want more American technology for their industries and commerce. The United States wants more and cheaper oil and raw materials.

It's time the U.S. and these nations talked trade, according to a report issued today by Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, to his colleagues on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Ryan's 52-page booklet report is based on Ryan's talks and observations during an Aug. 22 to Sept. 8 tour of those countries.

Ryan toured the USSR, Poland, Hungary and Romania, reporting that each seeks "Most Favored Nation" treatment in U.S. traded relations. The result could be a $2 billion favorable balance of trade per year by 1980 and up to 116,000 new jobs in the U.S., Ryan indicated.

Aside from the economic benefits to this country, Ryan suggested that increased trade would lessen political tensions between the two blocs. It won't change the Communists into capitalists, Ryan said. "However, trade can serve as a catalyst toward the improvement of political relations by reducing animosities and providing a basis for working out mutually acceptable solutions to common problems."

But there are two major pitfalls which Ryan said should be avoided. One is that nothing should be traded that would endanger U.S. national security, such as strategic materials or goods that would be of great military value to the Warsaw Pact nations.

The other is that the American consumer be protected, particularly in the commodities field, against inflationary pressures brought on by exports and resulting lesser domestic supplies. Ryan cited the 1972 Russian wheat deal, which made money for the exporting private companies but resulted in higher bread and meat prices in this country.

Ryan made a series of recommendations, including:

- Give the President authority to grant Most Favored Nation status to the Soviet Union for a trial period of two years and to grant MFN to other Warsaw Pact countries permanently;
- Extend presidential authority to allow Export-Import Bank loans to Communist countries deemed within our national interest and that trade not be subsidized by the American taxpayer;

- Review all Cold War era and subsequent trade restriction laws against commerce with Communist countries to update and remove "obsolete" restrictions;
- Negotiations for MFN status with the USSR should include U.S. insistence on access to Soviet oil and natural gas, at least while the U.S. seeks its own energy alternatives;

- Speed up joint programs with Poland to mine more coal, now that deep-shaft mining is economically feasible again;
- The U.S. should insist that the Russians improve conditions under which American businessmen now must operate in their country, with an eye toward eliminating many restrictions.

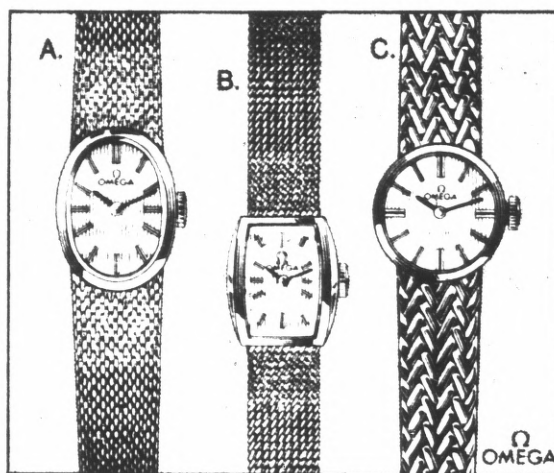

Ryan didn't address himself directly to the thorny problem of what to do about emigration of Jews from Russia, which the U.S. Congress has tied in to trade agreements with the Soviet Union.

Congress killed one MFN bill last year because of alleged harsh treatment of Jews in Russia, resulting in a hardening of the Soviet position on trade and a cutting in half of Jewish emigration from a 1973 high of 35,000.

"Clearly, if both sides remain unyielding on this issue, Soviet-American commercial relations and detente itself could suffer a serious setback. The question our government must deal with is whether a compromise solution to this problem is in the best interest of the United States. The study mission is convinced that it is.," Ryan said. The problem as the Soviets see it, Ryan explained, is that relaxing emigration quotas on Jews could encourage unrest among other Russian minorities — "and the Soviet Union is largely a country of minority groups."

When you give time, you give a part of life itself.

The time you give the people you love may be the most precious gift of your love's giving, for it is the very fabric of life.
